Republicans of Hawaii will lose practically all voice in national affairs and certainly all votes in national party conventions if the plan now set forth by mainland party leaders is allowed to go through.

In the past Hawaii has had six delegates to and six votes in national Republican conventions. The plan now is to cut Hawaii's representation down to two non-voting delegates, the same as Porto Rico and the Philippines will have. On the other hand, Alaska and the District of Columbia are to have two voting delegates each.

This reduced representation was decided upon several weeks ago, when the Republican national committee announced that the plan, which had been proposed several months ago, had been ratified by most of the state organizations.

Vice-Chairman Robert W. Breckons of the Republican territorial committee was informed by the Star-Bulletin this morning of the announcement, which was made in New York on October 26, and Mr. Breckons immediately got busy. By this afternoon's mail he is sending to national party members with influence strong protests against any action that will so reduce Hawaii's voice in national conventions.

"My information is that the final decision will not be reached until December, but Hawaii ought to make a vigorous protest anyway," said Breckons. "It is true, probably, that the states have ratified the plan, but it has still to be passed on by the national committee. I will write to Chairman Hilles and others today."

Charles D. Hilles, chairman of the Republican national committee, announced on October 25, in New York, that the new plan of representation in the Republican national convention of 1916 had been ratified by the conventions of states casting 290 of the 531 votes in the electoral college. The convention of 1912 was made up of 1078 delegates. That of 1916 will be made up of 989.

Eleven of the southern states will bear the brunt of the pruning by which this reduction of 89 delegates has been brought about. New York alone of the northern states suffers, while from Hawaii, Porto Rico and the Philippines will be taken more than half the present representation. The losses are:

Alabama, 8; Arkansas, 3; Florida, 4; Georgia, 11; Louisiana, 8; Mississippi, 8; North Carolina, 2; South Carolina, 3; Texas, 16; Virginia, 8; Hawaii, 4; Porto Rico, 2; Philippine Islands, 2.

End of Long Fight.
The fight to cut down the representation of southern states in Republican convention has been under way since 1880, when the advocates of a third term for Gen. Grant held out so tenaciously. Little actual progress was made toward changing the basis from the allotment of two delegates for each vote in the electoral college until Dec. 16, 1913, when the national committee faced the question squarely at a meeting held in Washington.

At that time the law committee of the national committee—composed of Charles B. Warren of Michigan, William E. Borah of Idaho and Henry D. Hatfield of West Virginia—proposed: "That the Republican voters in each state shall hereafter be represented in a national convention of the party by four delegates-at-large; two delegates for each Representative-at-large in Congress; one delegate from each congressional district; and an additional delegate from each congressional district in which the vote in 1908 for any Republican elector, or for the Republican nominee for Congress in 1914, shall have been not less than 7500."

That Alaska and the District of Columbia shall each be entitled to two voting delegates, while Hawaii, Porto Rico and the Philippine Islands shall each be entitled to two delegates without the right to vote.

Chairman Warren submitted this plan, with the following argument: "When one state sends one delegate for every 1054 votes cast for the Re-

Prof. Krauss goes to Maui to become identified with some important federal experiments, station work and, as he already is interested in home-steading on the Valley Island, his new position is expected to be a very satisfactory one.

Mr. Smith was former director of the federal experiment station here, leaving the United States service to go into the tobacco business at Kona.

publican candidate for the presidency at the preceding election, and another state one delegate for every 10,368 votes cast; when one state sends one delegate for every 887 votes and another one delegate for every 10,361; when one sends one delegate for every 147 votes and another one delegate for every 11,186 votes; when one sends one delegate for every 220 votes and another one delegate for every 11,633, all must know that such a method and such a system must cease."

States That Opposed Plan.
Only Alabama, Georgia, Mississippi, Nebraska, South Dakota, Texas and Virginia, out of a total of 45 voted against the plan, and it was further provided that before Jan. 1, 1915, conventions in states casting a majority of the votes in the electoral college should ratify the proposal.

This ratification has now been made, the states approving being Arkansas, California, Colorado, Connecticut, Idaho, Illinois, Indiana, Maine, Massachusetts, Michigan, Missouri, New Jersey, New York, North Carolina, Ohio, Oklahoma, Rhode Island, South Carolina, Tennessee, Vermont, Washington and West Virginia.

"The new plan," said Chairman Hilles in announcing the ratification "will eliminate conflicts between the rules of the party and the laws of several states. It will also reduce the number of contesting delegations. The system of unequal numerical representation, against which many states constantly contended, was the legacy of years and of political custom. It was, therefore, not in any way identified with the convention of 1912."

Quick on the Trigger With a Snap-Shot Eye

THE crack trapshooter has to be a man with steady nerves and muscles absolutely under control—always ready, at the sudden jerk of a string to swing his gun into place and bring down his clay pigeon. This means trained, not to the minute, but to the split-second. He takes no chances with his nerves.

We present the names of some of these crack shots who smoke Tuxedo. They like to smoke; but they take no chances on a tobacco that might "throw them off."

Tuxedo

The Perfect Tobacco for Pipe and Cigarette

is purposely made to give you all the benefits of the highest grade smoke. It is made from the very finest tobacco Kentucky grows—ripe, mellow, sweet and mild old Burley, aged right up to perfection-day. Then treated by the original "Tuxedo Process," which takes out the sting, makes Tuxedo smoke cool and slow, and guarantees that it cannot bite your tongue.

Tuxedo has had many imitators; none has ever equalled it in sheer quality and smoking-value.

The Season of Good Cheer

The most wonderful thing about this America of ours, is that no matter how it gets bumped into and upset, it always comes right side up with care—"Bohs up serenely," as the story goes.

Being newer and younger and more vigorous we adjust ourselves more rapidly.

This year we have had a big crop again. There is plenty to eat, plenty to do, and in spite of the fact that one hemisphere is shaken to its foundations, our hemisphere is going steadily on its way.

We have had our harvest and we are preparing for our holidays. And this year we are putting into our holidays a part of ourselves.

Already hundreds of thousands of women all over America have begun making things and doing things for Christmas. Already you will find in thousands of stores beautiful displays of merchandise that go to the making of Christmas gifts. Fabrics of every kind, Laces and Embroideries, fabrics for hand-work—all things that can be made into gifts both useful and beautiful are having their demand.

The woman who can paint is decorating china for her gifts. The woman who is clever at needle work is hemstitching and crocheting beautiful doilies and linens. The woman who can sew well is picking out fabrics of elegance and charm which will soon be presents for her friends and her family. The woman who can knit (and every woman can knit) has her needles clicking away at sweaters and mufflers and caps; and she is putting the warmth of her own heart into her work.

This is going to be a beautiful Christmas because its gifts are going to carry a personal message from the giver.

If you have not joined this great army of Christmas workers, do so today. You will be happier for it and somebody else will be happier too.

The advertising in this paper will help you in your choice. The stores are all behind this big movement. Their displays are ready for you to see. Take off your figurative coat and go to work.
